

Language Differences Migrant Worker Poster

Group 3: 義文—Lina 李巧緣, Ivy 吳宛庭, Jessica 張瑄庭, Sylvia 劉湘盈

1 Factors that make language difficult.

1. Long working hours: no time to learn.
2. Large differences between native language and Chinese.
3. Stress and adaptation pressure: low motivation

Impact: Harder to integrate into society and more likely to feel isolated.

Solution 1: Provide flexible language classes for migrant workers.

Solution 2: Offer language-learning support at the workplace.

2 How language differences cause misunderstandings.

1. Misunderstanding work instructions.
2. Different cultural expressions.
3. Daily communication problems.

Impact: More work mistakes, more conflicts and reduced interaction with others.

Solution 1: Use simple, clear language at work with visual aids.

Solution 2: Provide basic cultural training for both workers and employers.

3 Effects of limited language skills on accessing services.

1. Healthcare: hard to explain symptoms.
2. Legal help: can't understand rights.
3. Education or training: hard to join courses.

Impact: Affects their health and rights, and reduces opportunities for learning and improving quality of life.

Solution 1: Offer translation services for important situations.

Solution 2: Create simple versions of legal and medical documents.

Conclusion

- Migrant workers struggle with language learning because of long work hours, big language differences and adaptation stress.
- Language barriers cause misunderstandings at work, including unclear instructions and communication problems.
- Limited language skills reduce access to healthcare, legal help, and education.
- Solutions: Flexible language classes, workplace communication support, cultural training, and translation services.
